MISSISSIPPI RIVER IS AN INLAND SEA

COVERING FIVE THOUSAND SQUARE MILES OF RICH LAND

Roads Blocked By Raging Rivers—Refugees Crowd All Available Levees—Nine Parishes Now Covered By Water—Two New Breaks In Defenses, Which Will Add One Hundred Thousand People To the List of Homeless.

The charging Mississippi river Wednesday night rapidly was completing the devastation of northeastern Louisiana started by its tributaries.

Sweeping thru its banks at another place Wednesday between Vicksburg and Natchez, the river was sending roaring torrents into Tensas parish, north and south of the town of St. Joseph. Work had been abandoned at Villa Clara below St. Joseph, but reports said the levee had not gone out.

Save for narrow bridges running thru Franklin and West Carroll parishes and Ouachita and Morehouse parishes, water now covers or soon will cover the whole of the 5000 square miles in the funnel bounded on the north by Arkansas, on the west and east by the Ouachita and Mississippi and on the south by the Red and Old rivers.

While backwaters long since have driven a large percentage of the population of the nine affected parishes to refugee concentration points, many other thousands have pinned their faith on the Mississippi levees and clung to their homes.

Warned by telephone and airplane these began moving out Wednesday night and the human stream continued on the move, although all reports indicated there was no wild dash before the water as it crept slowly toward nearly a dozen towns whose populations had been augmented by hundreds of refugees.

In most of the parishes where the inundation is being made complete by the breaks in the Mississippi levees, main roads already had been blocked by backwaters from the Red, the Black, the Arkansas and the Ouachita rivers and chief reliance for rescue was placed in boats.

Thousands streamed out to the levees, the one place of safety, and anxiously awaited the coming of the rescue fleets, dispatched from Natchez and Vicksburg. In several of the towns time was given for moving much of the household goods.

These new crevasses on the Mississippi are widening what already is the largest lake ever created by any flood since the levee system was installed. Aviators flying over the territory report a practically solid sheet of water in southeastern Arkansas, northeastern Louisiana and western Mississippi measuring several hundred miles north and south and perhaps 100 miles east and west.

At many places along the vast stretch the Mississippi river itself is only faintly outlined by the tops of the levee with water stretching away to the right and the left. The embankments are broken at nearly a dozen places and swift currents still are passing thru even the oldest of the breaks.

Rich in Roman Relics

Merida, Spain, the ancient capital of Lusitania, is noted for its relics of Roman times. It has a bridge built by Trajan, a ruined castle, a triumphal arch, an aqueduct, a circus maximus and an amphitheater.

Joe Miller Serious Actor

Joe Miller, whose name was given to various eighteenth century joke books, was a very serious actor at Old Drury Lane theater.

delta can be observed rushing back into the parent stream thru the Yazoo river north of Vicksburg and those from the Glasscocke breaks are coursing down the Tensas valley to seek a remingling with the mother stream thru the Old river.

This vast funnel of water bearing down on the Old river, the Red and the Atchafalaya has created a new battle front for those fighting the floods, a front of water and mud along a winding course of 80 miles. On the outcome of this battle depends the safety of the rich sugar cane section in south central Louisiana.

If the engineers can hold the line on that front, the flood water will be taken up by the Mississippi and cause a corresponding increase of pressure on the levees of the main stream from Angola south of New Orleans as the flood crest moves on to the sea.

Reports made Wednesday to former Governor John M. Parker, civilian flood dictator for Louisiana, said no weakness had developed on the east levee between Baton and New Orleans. Some seepage was observed at Conrad's Point, south of Baton Rouge, but this was successfully blanketed.

DANCERS, TRY THIS

Crowds in a busy street of London, England, were astonished recently to see a man and woman dancing the Charleston on the top of a moving automobile and doing the intricate steps in perfect rhythm. The dancers were Santos Casani and Miss Jose Leonard.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Urbana — Charging her husband, August F. Oelker, threatened to kill her because there was no coffee for breakfast, Katherine Oelker has sued for divorce.

Greenville — Mrs. Eli Teaford was burned when a gasoline lantern exploded. She will recover.

Cincinnati — Struck by an electric feed wire that fell from a pole late yesterday, Mrs. Peter Guethlein, 37, was injured seriously. She was walking on the sidewalk. Her skull may be fractured. Her head is cut and her ankle injured.

Dayton — Indictments were to be returned today against between 40 and 50 Cincinnatians, whose cases were probed by the federal grand jury in session for the southern Ohio district. Columbus cases, considered first, netted 20 indictments. Probe of the Dayton liquor situation is scheduled for the report on the Cincinnati cases, most of which are based on liquor violations.

Dayton — In preparation for a trip to England, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dalton obtained a new marriage license to replace one lost in the 1913 flood. A license is necessary in obtaining a passport.

Columbus — Clifford Bidgeon, 40, Briggsdale, was thrown to the pavement and suffered a fractured skull, late yesterday, when he walked into the rear fender of the machine driven by Robert Bennett, of this city. Police who took him to the hospital said violated the pedestrian traffic ordinance by crossing the street against the red signal.

May Not Have to Remain Home to Get Phone Calls

Washington. — No longer need one remain at home to receive a telephone message, if a recent Swedish invention proves practicable, according to the Department of Commerce.

The device, it is claimed, receives telephone messages in the absence of the householder and reproduces them on his return. It is attached to an ordinary telephone and directly connects the device with central.

The conversation is received on a highly sensitive material, which later reproduces the message.

Counting Germs

New York. — There are so many germs in New York's congested subways that experts are nabbing a few with bottles in an effort to estimate the number.

LAURELVILLE AUTO VICTIM PASSES AWAY

At Grant Hospital Columbus Wednesday, Never Recovered Consciousness.

Leslie Seesholtz, Karr, aged 23, died at 3 o'clock Wednesday, May 4, at Grant hospital, Columbus, without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Karr, who was the son of John and Mary Ann Seesholtz Karr, was born in Salt Creek township, this county, and was one of a family of thirteen children, eleven of whom with the parents, survive. He had been employed as a truck driver for L. A. McClelland, who runs a general store in Laurelville and was walking along the road when he was struck by an auto driven by Samuel Hunter of Whisler and rendered unconscious.

The funeral services will be held at Prairie View Evangelical church Friday morning at ten o'clock. Interment in the Immler cemetery.

THOMPSON ELECTED

MOTHERS' DAY.

It may be well for everyone who has a mother living to make a definite note today that next Sunday is Mothers' day. No one would fail to gladden the heart of his mother by a loving message or a gift on this day that is specially set aside in her honor, unless in the rush of things he chanced to overlook the date.

There is some slight criticism here of Mothers' day being commercialized. That does not appear any too well founded. It is difficult to see that there is anything objectionable to flowers, cards, candy and many other appropriate little gifts for Mothers' day being featured and advertised by dealers.

It has never been suggested that Christmas day is robbed of its sentiment by the fact that the stores display toys and other gifts. We are a busy and careless people, no matter how sentimental in regard to mother. Reminders to send her a bit of a gift on her very own day keep many of us from overlooking an opportunity for happiness for both the giver and the recipient.

Another Paradox

The trouble with being thrown on your own resources is that it so often happens when you haven't any.

ENGLAND RILED OVER MELLONS DEBT VIEWS

The Secretary's Veracity is Doubted—Stand on War Debt Protested.

The state department advised the British government Wednesday that the United States regards the recent correspondence between Secretary Mellon and President Hibben of Princeton university on war debts as a "purely domestic discussion and does not desire to engage in any formal diplomatic exchanges on the subject."

The views of the Washington government were contained in a note dated May 2, and handed to the department Wednesday by the British charge. It was in reply to a note handed the department earlier in the day by the British charge d'affaires, acting in the absence from Washington of Ambassador Howard which challenged the accuracy of a statement by Mellon that Great Britain's debt payments to the United States would not constitute a drain on British economic resources.

The statement of the treasury secretary was a part of a letter written by him to Dr. Hubben in reply to the contention of members of the Princeton and Columbia university faculties that there should be a revision of the debt settlements.

Expressing great misgiving because of the divergence of opinion and estrangement of sentiment growing up in regard to the war debts, the British government in a note to the United States Wednesday challenged the accuracy of the statement March 17, by Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the U. S. treasury, that Great Britain's debt payments to the United States will not constitute a drain on British economic resources.

The note specifically declared that in no circumstances will Great Britain receive from reparations and interallied war debts, taken together, more than she pays to America and that it was not the desire of the British government to retain for their country anything out of receipts from reparations and interallied war debts.

Citing what the British government regards as errors and inaccuracies in Mellon's statement, the note expresses "trust that the U. S. government will take steps to remove the unfortunate impression that has been created" by the issuance of the Mellon statement.

Stating that the British government was presenting its considerations of the war debt problem "in no contentious or controversial spirit," the note declares that, "on the contrary, their desire is to maintain and to promote a friendly understanding between the two great English speaking nations, on whose cooperation great issues for the peace and progress of the world depend."

"They view with great misgivings the divergence of opinions and the estrangement of sentiment which has arisen in regard to these war obligations."

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The Ladies' society of Trinity Lutheran church held a very interesting meeting in the social room of the church Wednesday, May 3. The meeting opened with song and scripture reading by the president. Prayer following. The missionary paper was read and discussed by several members of the society. After the business session a piano solo by Miss Helen Pickens and two vocal selections by Mrs. James Moffitt were very much enjoyed by all. Lunch was served by the May committee.

Miss Blanche McCrady spent the day in Columbus.

Library in Box Car

Follows Lumberjacks

Butte, Mont.—A traveling library that follows the lumberjacks of the Anaconda Copper Mining company into the forests of Missoula county.

The library is housed in a box car. When the loggers move, the car is tugged up the narrow-gauge railway to the new site and shunted to a sidetrack. The steps are lowered and the library is ready for business. The company and the Missoula free library operate the car.

The 12 by 40-foot car is lighted, heated and furnished with tables and chairs. Open book-cases occupy two-thirds of the walls. At one end, in the library office, books are wrapped to be packed to camps miles away.

Five thousand loggers borrowed 3,200 books last year, and the car is filled with readers in leisure hours.

CHURCH VIEWS
ON CANDIDACYOf Governor Alfred Smith of
New York For the Office of President of the U. S.Semi-official and exclusive statement of the Holy See's attitude toward the presidential candidacy of Governor Alfred Smith, of New York was obtained by the United Press
Thursday from a qualified spokesman for the vatican at Rome.Among the points made by the spokesman for the vatican were:1.—The attitude of those Americans who view Smith's candidacy as really the candidacy of the Holy See was "most unfortunate."2.—The Holy See does not know of any reason for desiring that a Catholic should be president of the United States.3.—There will be no meddling on the part of the vatican in the campaign.4.—The Holy See has often expressed satisfaction with the attitude assumed by the president of the United States.5.—It is the policy of the Holy See to abstain from all political struggles within the various states."The apostolic delegate to the United States" the spokesman said has been received everywhere most cordially even tho he does not enjoy diplomatic standing. The Holy See has often expressed satisfaction with the attitude assumed by the president of the United States, especially with respect to his adherence to several proposals of an international character."There will be no meddling whatsoever in the present campaign on the part of the vatican."The Holy See, while it would be pleased to see a Catholic called to the presidency of a great nation, as another proof of the esteem in which the church is held, would in no wise oppose the election of a Protestant."If the Holy See should oppose a Protestant in favor of a Catholic, it could not but create hostility to the Catholic church and result in obvious damage to the church's higher spiritual interests.PERSONALS*Charles T. Gilmore was a visitor in

As One Writer Sees
the Typical American

A heavy tread in men, with the weight of the body rolling from one leg to the other; a quick, provocative step in women, an oversureness beaming from face and body. A kind of impersonal apparel—clothes which are good and smart, but which are detached from the person who wears them. I see a hard-faced old matron with a big Paris hat, put on correctly and dutifully, and an antique cashmere shawl turned into a coat, worn with firmness and decorum, horn-rimmed eye-glasses, self-conscious shoes, and more than all that—the eyes.

American eyes are astoundingly outward-looking. They peer out into the world, seeming to run in advance of the brain behind them. They are often very beautiful in their eagerness and vivacity, but for a European they are almost terrifying; we fathom a touch of insanity in them. Their vigilance is so unrelaxing one feels as if they would never find rest in inward contemplation and never escape the pressure of things by inner seclusion.

CIRCLEVILLE
DISPOSAL PLANT

Sooner or Later, Plans and Specifications to be Prepared at Once.

Council met in regular session Wednesday evening, May 4, with President John C. Goeller, presiding.

Mr. Leist, as chairman, reported that the committee had investigated the application made by the Norfolk & Western Railway company to construct additional track on Huston street between Clinton and Washington streets and that the committee was willing to report favorable upon the petition of said railway company and on motion of Mr. Wolf this report was accepted.

Solicitor Weldon made a report of his visit to the state board of health in regard to the city water supply. He stated that the board is doing everything possible to make the water pure and stated that he had received word from the state board that the last analysis showed that the water was now pure enough to drink without boiling.

A petition signed by O. L. Ferguson and others asking the city to construct a sanitary sewer from the intersection of Half avenue and Clinton street, thence south on Clinton street to Ohio street; thence east on Ohio street to Renick avenue, was presented and read and was referred to the service committee and city engineer on motion of Mr. Baker the motion carried.

The matter of the city of Columbus polluting the water of the Scioto river by dumping their raw sewage into the same; and also the fact Columbus is preventing the natural flow of this water by the construction of dams, was brought to council by R. L. Brehmer and T. F. Jeffries representing the chamber of commerce. These gentlemen asked council to join with the county, the several townships along the river and the chamber of commerce to bring an action in the courts enjoining the city of Columbus from dumping its raw sewage into the Scioto river. This question was also discussed by Solicitor Weldon and Dr. Howard Jones. Th matter be referred to the committee on department of health.

This matter brought up the fact that the city of Circleville will be required in the future to build a sewerage disposal plant. A resolution requesting the city engineer to prepare plans, specifications, profiles and estimates of a sewerage disposal plant was introduced and read on motion of Mr. Baker was adopted.

An ordinance transferring from the general government fund to the public service fund, the sum of $240 and then appropriating said sum for the payment of the current used in the traffic lights was introduced read and passed under suspension of the rules.

Mayor Fitzpatrick reported fines, licenses and fees collected during the month of April in the sum of $369.80 and on motion of Landenberger this report was received and placed on file.

Mayor Fitzpatrick reported to council that a request had been made of him by some of the old soldiers, asking the city to construct a new fence around the old cemetery on High street and this was referred to the public service committee and director of public service.

On motion of Mr. Shaner the city solicitor was requested to prepare the necessary resolution in order to properly number the dwelling houses in the Ruff addition so they may receive free mail delivery.

AMUSEMENTS

The immeasurably, old and ever poignant story of the battle of man with the desert, the never ceasing struggle to nourish potentially rich lands with indispensable water, is the theme of "The Mysterious Rider" a Paramount picture from the Zane Grey story now playing at the Met theater.

The handsome Jack Holt, who rides as tho he were a part of the horse, and who handles a western six-shooter with the ease of long practice, more than satisfies. He plays the title role of Bent Wade, with the sympathy and nerve that influenced Zane Grey personally to select him to play leading roles in his stories. Betty Jewel, a newcomer in Paramount pictures, scores an immediate success.

Briefly, the story concerns a group of homesteaders, who find themselves in danger of losing their meagre desert lands because of the existence of an ancient Spanish grant that supersedes their own claims. This grant is held by Cliff Harkness, who finally agrees to relinquish it for a consideration of $25,000. The ranchers entrust the money to Wade who pays Harkness and receives a receipt.

But Harkness double crosses. He resells to Mark Kink, who represents a rich power company, for $150,000. Holt's receipt proves to be a blank piece of paper, and the ranchers believing him crooked turn on him to lynch him. He is forced into outlawry captured and confined in jail, from which he escapes to ride about the country masked, warning the settlers not to give up their lands.

From then on, his days are packed with excitement. He outwits Harkness, securing the ranchers the land grant, returns King his money, and finds himself once more a highly respected member of his community but only after a thrilling series of episodes that call forth all the acrobatic stunts in his repertoire.

A pleasing love story is interwoven. Betty Jewel plays Dorothy King, daughter of the capitalist. She rides a horse as well as Holt and is no strain whatever to the eyes.

The comedy element is not omitted. This phase of the picture is in the capable hands of Tom Kennedy, known for his work in "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now" and "Man of the Forest."

Lesson for May 6PETER AND THE RISEN LORD

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-10; 21:15-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ which according to His abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Forgives Peter.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Forgives and Restores Peter.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Risen Lord Appears to Peter, YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Fellowship With the Risen Lord.

I. Peter and John at the Empty Tomb (John 20:1-10).

John does not enter into a description of the resurrection of Christ or attempt a proof other than that the tomb was empty and that Jesus had repeatedly manifested Himself to the disciples after the tomb had been found empty.

1. How they came to know (vv. 1, 2).

The information was brought by Mary Magdalene out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons (Mark 16:9, Luke 8:2). Prompted by love for Him she went early to the tomb, "while it was yet dark," "she was last at the cross and first at the grave, she stayed longest there and was soonest here." Her love for Jesus was genuine, though her knowledge of His resurrection was defective. She could not rest till she had done her utmost for Him because she realized that great good had come to her from His hands. The reason we work so little for the Lord is that we have such a dim sense of His saving grace.

2. Their investigation (vv. 3-10).

The news of the empty tomb, which Mary brought with breathless haste, so moved John and Peter that they both ran to investigate. Upon arrival at the tomb John gazed upon it, but Peter entered it. John, with holy reverence, hesitates. Peter, with impulsiveness, enters the tomb at once. Their respective actions are not to be explained on the basis of degrees of love for the Lord, but to temperament. The investigation convinced them. The removal of the stone from the sepulcher, the arrangement of the graveclothes all convinced them that it had not been done by an enemy.

II. The Charge of the Risen Lord to Peter (John 21:15-17).

Jesus put to Peter the thrice repeated question, "Lovest thou me?" Then He gave him a commission. This shows that supreme love to Christ is the one essential qualification for serving Him. Love is the spring from which all Christian activity flows. He asked, also, to show that there are three classes in the church which demand care and attention. These three classes need special care and food.

1. Feed my lambs (v. 15).

This first charge relates to those who are beginning the Christian life—the babes in Christ. The word "feed" means more than instruction. It means in addition to instruction that proper surroundings, influences and examples should be provided. As a Christian minister, Peter was to be an example, provide the proper surroundings and do the proper teaching for the young Christians, those just beginning the Christian life.

2. Tend my sheep (v. 16).

This charge shows a different class. It means to shepherd the sheep. It has application to the mature class of Christians. The duty enjoined therefore is to care for those who have passed out of their childhood into maturity. He must feed the sheep, give them proper instruction, guide them, lead them and discipline them. For this ministry the essential qualification is love.

3. Feed my sheep (v. 17).

The implication here is that Peter was charged with the responsibility of caring for aged Christians. The word "feed" is much the same as in the first case. It means that for the aged Christians the instruction ought to be such as will be suited to their needs. This needs special emphasis today because much attention is given to the young people, but in many instances the old people are neglected.

III. Follow Me (vv. 18-23).

In verse 18 is given a clear prophecy concerning Peter's death. It was to be by crucifixion. Peter once shrank from the cross, but now the Lord holds it up before him. It is not the Lord's death on the cross, but Peter's own. He teaches here that the Christian's death is for the glory of God. Whatever may be before us, even the cruel cross, the Lord's command is to follow Him.

Our Hope

Our hope lies not in the absence of danger, but in the presence of Christ, who is able to control the storm. No church with Christ in it can be wrecked or lost. More of the living Christ, more of His love, of His teaching.—Western Recorder.

"HANDS ACROSS THE BORDER"

A bill has been introduced in the Dominion Parliament in Canada to incorporate the North American Relations Foundation. The foundation is intended to "promote, maintain and safeguard amity and friendly relations between the people of Canada, the United States and the British Commonwealth of nations generally" and to foster "co-operation in all matters of economic disposition of the people of these countries." The list of incorporators includes some of the most important figures in Canadian life. The idea is a good one, particularly as the program of the foundation indicates that it will work toward breaking down the tariff barrier between the United States and Canada. The attention of our internationalists who are wasting their thoughts upon Europe, which does not want their advice, would better be directed to establishing the North American Relations Foundation on this side of the border. Maintaining good relations with Canada is as much a tradition of American foreign policy as is keeping out of European entanglements.—Chicago Tribune.

BIG INSULATING BOARD FACTORY
For Southwest--New Corporation Organized at St. Joseph, Starts July 1.

Early in July the Stewart Inso Board Company will open a modern, splendidly equipped mill at St. Joseph, Missouri. The building, of the most modern concrete and steel type, is an example of the highest engineering standards as applied to industrial construction. The entire facilities of the plant will be given to the manufacture of one product, insulating building boards, to be known under the trade name "Inso Board." With initial output of over 100,000 square feet of Inso Board per day, this industry is probably the largest of its kind in the Southwest.

Certainly it will give to the southwestern states a new industrial impetus, for it is one of those essential enterprises whose conception and development was undertaken in response to an already existing demand for an industry of this particular type in this particular section of the country. Here is raw material in plentiful supply, much of it representing an economic waste to the Southwest of several million dollars yearly.

Straw, golden stacks of it, such as have been burned each year by the Southwestern farmer ever since the days when the great Kansas plains began to grow wheat in such Croesus-like abundance, will be the principal raw material used in the making of Inso Board.

It is readily understood, then, that the Stewart Inso Board industry, built as it is in conformity to the leading agricultural pursuit of its natural territory, will open up a new and extensive market for a by-product of the vast wheat-growing industry of the Southwest—a by-product which heretofore has largely gone into the economic discard.

The process of using straw as the base for the manufacture of insulating board is a new one.

Insulating boards in recent years have been manufactured from various fibres but the American Association of Refrigerating Engineers in their annual report, recently published, classed straw as being higher in insulating value than other fibres.

ORDER POWER SERVICE RESUMED

A breach between two north-eastern Ohio electric power companies, which resulted in power being discontinued to several communities for a short time, was halted temporarily Tuesday by action of the Trumbull County Common Pleas Court enjoining the Ohio Public Service Co. of Warren from shutting off power furnished the Suburban Power Co., Cleveland.

At the same time, the Ohio Public Utilities Commission ordered the Warren firm to resume service.

The Suburban Power Co. serves communities in Portage, Trumbull, Mahoning and Stark counties.

A conference was in progress at Cleveland Tuesday afternoon to iron out the differences between the two companies.

Bank Bandits' Social "Approach" Is Flawless

Superior, Neb.—Making an offer to entertain their thirteen prisoners and avoiding any display of roughness, the two well-dressed bandits who held up and ransacked the Farmers' State bank here of $25,000 during lunch hour, established a model of politeness.

"Here, take a seat. You'll be more comfortable," one of the bandits told J. H. Parsons, the bank's president, who had been lined up with the other captives. Parsons sat down, as did several other prisoners who could find chairs, while all awaited the arrival of the cashier to unlock the safe.

"Come right in, sir, and make yourself at home," said one of the men as a shoemaker's apprentice came into the bank for change. "Just step over there with the other gentlemen."

When Floyd Boersman, assistant cashier, finally entered the bank, the bandits forced him to open the safe. One scooped up everything in the vault, while the other marshaled his prisoners into the repository. He failed to lock the vault door, however, and an alarm was soon sounded, but no trace was found of the men.

Buy A Car With This Extra Money

FINANCIAL authorities announce that we now have a 70-cent dollar. In 1920 it was a 40-cent dollar worth—in purchasing power, not much more than half the dollar of today. These computations are based on one dollar's worth of general commodities at pre-war prices. The automobile dollar has increased in value at an even faster pace. It will actually buy more today than the pre-war automobile dollar.

You are making more money now, even the your income is no greater. Add to your life the advantages of up-to-date automotive transportation—exemplified at its best by the 1927 Ford line. Come in and talk it over.

Smoothness and economy depend upon the oil you use

Only a specially-compounded light-bodied oil—Polarine F—can give best results in your Ford. There are several reasons why this is so.

The Ford motor is a high speed motor and requires an oil which flows freely and quickly to all engine parts.

It is a high compression motor in which carbon formation is more serious, hence an oil of low carbon tendency is required.

Its bearing construction requires an oil light enough to penetrate quickly to bearing surfaces, yet of sufficient body to withstand heat and pressure.

The splash system of lubrication is used, requiring a light-bodied oil which will atomize readily when splashed by the connecting rods.

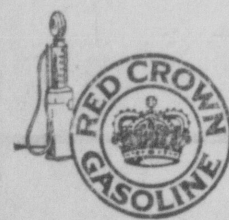

Polarine F also has the second vital Ford oil characteristic. It keeps transmission bands soft and pliable—prevents chatter and grab.

Our recommendation of Polarine F for Fords is based on our own experience with these cars as well as the judgment of lubrication engineers.

Change crank-case oil every 500 miles and refill with Polarine F. For chassis lubrication use Polarine BB (for differential gears) and Polarine Cup Grease. These high-quality lubricants are available everywhere in Ohio to help you get best results from your Ford.

SPECIAL SALE AND DEMONSTRATION

By a Practical Paint Man From the Factory

10% Discount On Thrift Day

Thrift Paint is the best Paint Proposition we ever sold or know about, for these reasons:

Thrift Paint is made of Pure White Lead, Zinc, Colors, Dryer and Linseed Oil in required proportions to produce the longest wear, beautiful colors and finish. Thrift Paint comes in a master painter's unreduced form and is ground so fine and mixed so well that it does not settle, and covers more surface. Thrift Paint is made ready for use by mixing one gallon of "Thrift" with one gallon of pure linseed oil, producing two gallons of paint, for first coat or priming more oil is added.

The Johnson Paint Co. make only high grade paints, but conceived this idea of saving Half the Cost of cans, boxing, labels, labor and freight which makes a saving of 75c to $1.00 per gallon as compared with other High Grade Paints.

This outstanding bargain for Thrift Paint is offered one day only in the year, when you can buy Thrift at 10 per cent less by booking your orders and paying a small amount down, and balance when you get the paint anytime during May, June or July.

She Won in Spite of Lulu

By JANE OSBORN

AFTER Eleanor Pickett had worked as stenographer in the insurance office of Mansard & Son she had to admit that she was in love with young George Mansard, and she had, moreover, to admit that she was jealous of Lulu Otis, the plump, strawberry-blond grass widow who sat at the telephone switchboard in the outer office of the Granger establishment, and spoke of herself as Mr. Mansard's private secretary. The fact that Eleanor took Mr. Mansard's dictation and had got so that she could attend to much of his correspondence alone made no difference to Lulu. Lulu insisted on taking charge of him. There was something unmistakably magnetic about Lulu and Eleanor tried to stifle her jealous feelings when Mr. Mansard loitered in the outer office exchanging slangy badinage with the buxom Lulu.

"You're terribly old-fashioned," Lulu had told her, on several occasions, and one day she added: "If you want to get in right with the boss you've got to show more pep. Of course while I'm here all he expects of you is to take his dictation, but if I were to leave, why he'd want a private secretary. I'd like to see you get the job, but you've got to remember that a man like Mr. Mansard needs a private secretary with an awful lot of pep—someone to kind of buck him up."

"But you're not thinking of leaving?" asked Eleanor timidly.

"Well, you know, girlie—a girl like me doesn't intend to work forever. I've only just got my freedom—" By freedom Eleanor knew that Lulu referred to her divorce papers which she had received only a few weeks before. "And I'm not going to be in too big a hurry this time."

Eleanor felt her cheeks burn with suspicious jealousy. She had seen Bob Mansard talking for a full half hour with Lulu that very morning.

"You know I always wear earrings to the office. Personally I think it's worth while to doll up a bit. The boss likes it and a lot of nice fellows come in here all the time. Of course you've got a nice complexion but just a bit of make-up does help a girl's appearance an awful lot—"

The next morning Eleanor purposely reached the office ten minutes ahead of her usual time of arrival so that she could be seated at her desk before Mr. Mansard or Lulu arrived. She didn't want to be too conspicuous in her new earrings.

But apparently the bit of makeup or the earrings did make a difference because when Bob Mansard came into the room he whistled.

"Why the war paint?" he asked in a tone of unusual familiarity. "And, great scot, dingle-dangles on your ears besides."

"Don't you like them?" asked Eleanor putting her hands up to the earrings.

"Oh, they're all right—only I think I like you better 'au naturel.'"

Eleanor swiftly pulled off the earrings and tucked them into the drawer of her desk.

"I didn't think you cared as much as that what I thought," said Bob Mansard, and Eleanor merely looked up at him with a smile.

Weeks and months went on and the situation so far as Eleanor and Bob Mansard were concerned went on without change. It seemed, however, to Eleanor as if she noted signs of increasing intimacy between him and Lulu. Doubtless now that she had really gained her "freedom" he was courting her in good earnest. Then came one Saturday morning when Eleanor could not fail to see an unwonted brilliance in Lulu's eyes.

"Heard the excitement?" Lulu asked Eleanor and then went on to explain. "I'm leaving for good in a few hours, girlie. I just came around to sort of say good-by. I'm going to get married Monday."

"I—hope you'll be very happy—Oh, I'm sure you will," stammered Eleanor, and then dreading the answer to the question—"May I know the name of the lucky man?"

Lulu's "You ask Mr. Mansard after I've gone," left no doubt whatever in Eleanor's mind.

Of course Eleanor didn't ask Mr. Mansard anything about it but just went to her desk and worked like a Trojan all the morning. At half-past eleven Bob Mansard drew up a chair beside her desk and dropped limply into it.

"She's gone at last," he sighed. "Lord knows how I've been looking forward to this moment."

"You mean—Mrs. Otis—Lulu?" asked Eleanor timidly.

"Lulu, indeed," said Robert. "And now Eleanor I'm going to make a long story short. I've loved you from the first day you came—but I've never dared tell you until now."

"But why did you have to wait?" she asked bewildered.

"Because I couldn't bear to be alone here with her—with Lulu. I was afraid she would never leave. You've no idea how she bossed me and bothered me before you came, and I didn't dare discharge her."

"But I thought she thought you were one of the strings to her bow—"

"Maybe she did," sighed Bob Mansard, taking Eleanor's little hand in his. "But I introduced her to a susceptible friend of mine with a load of money. But don't let's talk about them—Eleanor—please tell me you love me a little."

SOME FISH STORY COMES FROM FAR AWAY ALASKA

Charles Miller, Born In This City, After Roaming Over a Large Part of the World, Sighs For Old Roundtown—One of the First Things He Saw In Seattle Was a Copy of the Union-Herald.

The following letter to the Union-Herald from Charles Miller, of Seattle, Washington, and a grandson of J. A. Miller, of Darbyville, is self-explanatory:

"In September, 1901, I came to Circleville via the usual route we humans take to enter this world. If I remember correctly the time was about mid-afternoon, the day McKinley was shot, the place was Judge Abernethy's old home on North Court street, and the doctor was Dr. Howard Jones, from just across the street. Five months later I left Circleville and have never had the pleasure of again being there."

"I have just recently returned to Seattle from one of my trips and about the first thing I saw after getting settled again was a copy of the Union-Herald. Looking thru it I came across many names and places that seemed so very familiar. That was because I have heard my folks talk about them many times and they seemed something of mine, too."

"Circleville, somehow, seems to be as much mine as any of you who have lived there quite some time. I can't exactly explain the feeling but you must admit I am one of you. Then again there is my grandfather, J. A. Miller, of Darbyville, who, it seems to me is near enough to hold my option on Circleville."

"I spent my high schools days in Springfield and attended Wittenberg college there for a year. After that time we came to Seattle where I attended the University of Washington. Later I finished at the University of Arkansas. That is quite a diversified education, I think, if you take the geography into consideration."

"Speaking of geography perhaps you would like to know just how far a young man from Circleville has traveled. I have traveled to Seattle from Ohio and back again, three times; from Seattle to Arkansas, Florida, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California and all the places in between, including Mexico and many side trips; to Alaska, Kuprenoff Island, Admiralty Island, Canada, and into the Yukon territory. I'll tell you a fish story of Alaska later; thru Japan, Chosen, China and the Philippines; not mentioning all the side trips I have taken and the trips taken because of athletics."

BIG DEFICIT FACES OHIO JULY FIRST

Will be $20,000,000 in Two Years Unless New Revenue Sources are Found.

Ohio's treasury will be faced with a deficit of $12,800,000 at the close of the present two year period June 30, 1927, State Auditor Tracy said Wednesday, replying to a request of Governor Donahey for figures and estimates of the financial condition of the state.

Expenditures for the 18 month period beginning July 1, which have been authorized by appropriations of the general assembly will exceed revenue for that period by $7,150,000 creating a further deficit.

According to these figures, the legislature and the governor are faced with the task of devising new means of raising revenue and cutting expenses for the next two years to the extent of $20,000,000. Both means probably will be used.

This information was brought out in replies to three questions asked by the governor as to "the actual condition of the treasury May 1, 1927 June 30, 1927 and December 31, 1928." The information related only to the general revenue fund from which most state operating expenses are paid.

Money which was appropriated but not paid out on May 1, amounted to $23,281,000, the letter said. Much of this money is demanded by what are regarded as irreducible expenses. These demands will be increased be-

"If you are interested in any of these places or anything connected with them I will be glad to write and tell you all I can of them. Oh, yes, that fish story."

"First I'll have to lead up to it as it is rather hard to believe at that. The vicinity around Seattle, Puget Sound, expects to pack 1,000,000 cases of salmon this season, which lasts about six or seven weeks. In each case is thirty-six cans of salmon the tall cans. Alaska, of course, will pack many times that amount. The salmon are caught in fish traps and taken to the canneries in large scows holding about 22,000 fish, and towed by tug boats. Last summer, at Point Hobart, off Port Houghton, Alaska, my brother, Francis and myself, witnessed the unexpected and unusual case of seeing a trap catch 33,000 sock-eye and silver salmon in twenty-four hours fishing. None of the fish measured under twenty inches, and most of them were much larger than that measurement. Just imagine thirty-three thousand plunging, leaping flashes of silver salmon in one little pot net thirty by thirty feet and twenty-five feet deep. There's your fish story, a true one and a good one."

"My brother and myself are returning to Alaska again this summer on another trip and we are just waiting until he graduates from high school this June to do so. That many beautiful game fish in one day makes a fascinating argument for any fisherman to return and do some more fishing himself, but with a trolling line and not with a tray. They're fighters, those silvers, sock-eyes and kings, and sometimes when you get a hundred pound king on your line, it's just a matter of luck you don't get jerked into those cold waters."

"I'll have to stop this, as it will run on for pages if I don't. But, I'd like to hear from someone in Circleville who will tell me all about the town. I'm interested and really expect to make a trip back there either next fall or next spring."

"I've found one thing true, however, a journalist can go where he pleases, when he pleases and how he pleases, anywhere he cares to go, the newspaper game will take him."

"Please ask someone to acquaint me with Circleville. I'm awfully interested."

tween now and June 30 by $814,700 bringing the total to $24,096,000.

In addition to this, there existed on May 1, an overdraft of $2,138,536. Receipts between now and June 30, were estimated at approximately $2,348,000, which will equal the deficit and allow $110,000 balance to be applied against the $24,096,000, reducing the latter figure to $23,986,000.

Were it not for appropriations which will lapse June 30, the state's deficit of that date would be twice as large. Lapsing appropriations total $11,182,500 and bring down the deficit as given above to $12,803,000.

They include state office building $3,982,500; additions and betterments (new buildings, equipment, etc.) $2,500,000; state highway appropriation (new construction) $1,500,000; educational equalization, $2,500,000 (carried over until next year) and miscellaneous $700,000.

In arriving at the problem short-ages during the coming budgetary period beginning July 1, which shortage he fixed at $7,154,000, the auditor disagrees with estimates of legislative leaders. In estimating amounts which would be derived from increases in utility and corporation taxes, the total increase was fixed at $5,500,000 by legislative leaders and at $2,750,000 by the state auditor.

Mars and Its Satellites

The naval observatory says that both satellites of Mars move around that planet in the same direction; but the inner satellite completes one revolution in less time than Mars makes one rotation and, therefore, seen from Mars it appears to move in the opposite direction to the outer satellite.

Middle Ages Coinage

Mark was the name of a coin pretty general throughout Europe during the Middle Ages. The unit of the present coinage of Germany is called the mark. The old English mark was worth 13s 4d, that is $3.25; but in the Middle Ages the purchasing power of money was fully three times that of today.

FLORENCE cooks meals in double-quick time

A strong statement? Not at all. We know stoves. And we know that the Florence range sends more heat into the cooking in a given time from a gallon of kerosene than any other high-power oil range. It's focused heat that cuts down kitchen hours—and fuel bills as well. Ever cook on a Florence? A pleasant experience is awaiting you. It will pay you to come in today.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER IS AN INLAND SEA

COVERING FIVE THOUSAND SQUARE MILES OF RICH LAND

Roads Blocked By Raging Rivers—Refugees Crowd All Available Levees—Nine Parishes Now Covered By Water—Two New Breaks In Defenses, Which Will Add One Hundred Thousand People To the List of Homeless.

The charging Mississippi river Wednesday night rapidly was completing the devastation of northeastern Louisiana started by its tributaries.

Sweeping thru its banks at another place Wednesday between Vicksburg and Natchez, the river was sending roaring torrents into Tensas parish, north and south of the town of St. Joseph. Work had been abandoned at Villa Clara below St. Joseph, but reports said the levee had not gone out.

Save for narrow bridges running thru Franklin and West Carroll parishes and Ouachita and Morehouse parishes, water now covers or soon will cover the whole of the 5000 square miles in the funnel bounded on the north by Arkansas, on the west and east by the Ouachita and Mississippi and on the south by the Red and Old rivers.

While backwaters long since have driven a large percentage of the population of the nine affected parishes to refugee concentration points, many other thousands have pinned their faith on the Mississippi levees and clung to their homes.

Warned by telephone and airplane these began moving out Wednesday night and the human stream continued on the move, afloat all reports indicated there was no wild dash before the water as it crept slowly toward nearly a dozen towns whose populations had been augmented by hundreds of refugees.

In most of the parishes where the inundation is being made complete by the breaks in the Mississippi levees, main roads already had been blocked by backwaters from the Red, the Black, the Arkansas and the Ouachita rivers and chief reliance for rescue was placed in boats.

Thousands streamed out to the levees, the one place of safety, and anxiously awaited the coming of the rescue fleets, dispatched from Natchez and Vicksburg. In several of the towns time was given for moving much of the household goods.

These new crevasses on the Mississippi are widening what already is the largest lake ever created by any flood since the levee system was installed. Aviators flying over the territory report a practically solid sheet of water in southeastern Arkansas, northeastern Louisiana and western Mississippi measuring several hundred miles north and south and perhaps 100 miles east and west.

At many places along the vast stretch the Mississippi river itself is only faintly outlined by the tops of the levee with water stretching away to the right and the left. The embankments are broken at nearly a dozen places and swift currents still are passing thru even the oldest of the breaks.

Rich in Roman Relics

Merida, Spain, the ancient capital of Lusitania, is noted for its relics of Roman times. It has a bridge built by Trajan, a ruined castle, a triumphal arch, an aqueduct, a circus maximus and an amphitheater.

Joe Miller Serious Actor

Joe Miller, whose name was given to various Eighteenth century joke books, was a very serious actor at old Drury Lane theater.

delta can be observed rushing back into the parent stream thru the Yazoo river north of Vicksburg and those from the Glasscocke breaks are coursing down the Tensas valley to seek a remingling with the mother stream thru the Old river.

This vast funnel of water bearing down on the Old river, the Red and the Atchafalaya has created a new battle front for those fighting the floods, a front of water and mud along a winding course of 80 miles. On the outcome of this battle depends the safety of the rich sugar cane section in south central Louisiana.

If the engineers can hold the line on that front, the flood water will be taken up by the Mississippi and cause a corresponding increase of pressure on the levees of the main stream from Angola south of New Orleans as the flood crest moves on to the sea.

Reports made Wednesday to former Governor John M. Parker, civilian flood dictator for Louisiana, said no weakness had developed on the east levee between Baton and New Orleans. Some seepage was observed at Conrad's Point, south of Baton Rouge, but this was successfully blanketed.

DANCERS, TRY THIS

Paris Flight Plane Crashes, Killing Two

This picture, transmitted by telegraph wires, shows the great plane American Legion as it lay wrecked in a marsh near Newport News, Va. Lieut. Com. Noel Davis and Lieut. Stanton Wooster, who were testing the machine for the Paris flight, were killed.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Urbana — Charging her husband, August F. Oelker, threatened to kill her because there was no coffee for breakfast, Katherine Oelker has sued for divorce.

Greenville — Mrs. Eli Teaford was burned when a gasoline lantern exploded. She will recover.

Cincinnati — Struck by an electric feed wire that fell from a pole late yesterday, Mrs. Peter Guethlein, 37, was injured seriously. She was walking on the sidewalk. Her skull may be fractured. Her head is cut and her ankle injured.

Dayton — Indictments were to be returned today against between 40 and 50 Cincinnatians, whose cases were probed by the federal grand jury in session for the southern Ohio district. Columbus cases, considered first, netted 20 indictments. Probe of the Dayton liquor situation is scheduled for the report on the Cincinnati cases, most of which are based on liquor violations.

Dayton — In preparation for a trip to England, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dalton obtained a new marriage license to replace one lost in the 1913 flood. A license is necessary in obtaining a passport.

Columbus — Clifford Bidgeon, 40, Briggsdale, was thrown to the pavement and suffered a fractured skull, late yesterday, when he walked into the rear fender of the machine driven by Robert Bennett, of this city. Police who took him to the hospital said violated the pedestrian traffic ordinance by crossing the street against the red signal.

May Not Have to Remain Home to Get Phone Calls

Washington.—No longer need one remain at home to receive a telephone message, if a recent Swedish invention proves practicable, according to the Department of Commerce. The device, it is claimed, receives telephone messages in the absence of the householder and reproduces them on his return. It is attached to an ordinary telephone and directly connects the device with central.

The conversation is received on a highly sensitive material, which later reproduces the message.

THOMPSON ELECTED

MOTHERS' DAY.

It may be well for everyone who has a mother living to make a definite note today that next Sunday is Mothers' day. No one would fail to gladden the heart of his mother by a loving message or a gift on this day that is specially set aside in her honor, unless in the rush of things he chances to overlook the date.

There is some slight criticism here of Mothers' day being commercialized. That does not appear any too well founded. It is difficult to see that there is anything objectionable to flowers, cards, candy and many other appropriate little gifts for Mothers' day being featured and advertised by dealers.

It has never been suggested that Christmas day is robbed of its sentiment by the fact that the stores display toys and other gifts. We are a busy and careless people, no matter how sentimental in regard to mother. Reminders to send her a bit of a gift on her very own day keep many of us from overlooking an opportunity for happiness for both the giver and the recipient.

Another Paradox

The trouble with being thrown on your own resources is that it so often happens when you haven't any.

ENGLAND RILED OVER MELLONS DEBT VIEWS

The Secretary's Veracity is Doubted—Stand on War Debt Protested.

The state department advised the British government Wednesday that the United States regards the recent correspondence between Secretary Milon and President Hibben of Princeton university on war debts as a "purely domestic discussion and does not desire to engage in any formal diplomatic exchanges on the subject."

The views of the Washington government were contained in a note dated May 2, and handed to the department Wednesday by the British charge. It was in reply to a note handed the department earlier in the day by the British charge d'affaires, acting in the absence from Washington of Ambassador Howard which challenged the accuracy of a statement by Mellon that Great Britain's debt payments to the United States would not constitute a drain on British economic resources.

The statement of the treasury secretary was a part of a letter written by him to Dr. Hubben in reply to the contention of members of the Princeton and Columbia university faculties that there should be a revision of the debt settlements.

Expressing great misgiving because of the divergence of opinion and estrangement of sentiment growing up in regard to the war debts, the British government in a note to the United States Wednesday challenged the accuracy of the statement March 17, by Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the U. S. treasury, that Great Britain's debt payments to the United States will not constitute a drain on British economic resources.

The note specifically declared that in no circumstances will Great Britain receive from reparations and interallied war debts, taken together, more than she pays to America and that it was not the desire of the British government to retain for their country anything out of receipts from reparations and interallied war debts.

Citing what the British government regards as errors and inaccuracies in Mellon's statement, the note expresses "trust that the U. S. government will take steps to remove the unfortunate impression that has been created" by the issuance of the Mellon statement.

Stating that the British government was presenting its considerations of the war debt problem "in no contentious or controversial spirit," the note declares that, "on the contrary, their desire is to maintain and to promote a friendly understanding between the two great English speaking nations, on whose cooperation great issues for the peace and progress of the world depend."

"They view with great misgivings the divergence of opinions and the estrangement of sentiment which is apparent in regard to these war obligations."

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The Ladies' society of Trinity Lutheran church held a very interesting meeting in the social room of the church Wednesday, May 3. The meeting opened with song and scripture reading by the president. Prayer following. The missionary paper was read and discussed by several members of the society. After the business session a piano solo by Miss Helen Pickens, and two vocal selections by Mrs. James Moffitt were very much enjoyed by all. Lunch was served by the May committee.

Miss Blanche McCrady spent the day in Columbus.

Library in Box Car

Follows Lumberjacks

Butte, Mont.—A traveling library that follows the lumberjacks of the Anaconda Copper Mining company into the forests of Missoula county.

The library is housed in a box car. When the loggers move, the car is tugged up the narrow-gauge railway to the new site and shunted to a sidetrack. The steps are lowered and the library is ready for business. The company and the Missoula free library operate the car.

The 12 by 40-foot car is lighted, heated and furnished with tables and chairs. Open book-cases occupy two-thirds of the walls. At one end, in the library office, books are wrapped to be packed to camps miles away.

Five thousand loggers borrowed 3,200 books last year, and the car is filled with readers in leisure hours.

CHURCH VIEWS
ON CANDIDACYOf Governor Alfred Smith of
New York For the Office of
President of the U. S.

Semi-official and exclusive statement of the Holy See's attitude toward the presidential candidacy of Governor Alfred Smith, of New York was obtained by the United Press Thursday from a qualified spokesman for the vatican at Rome.

Among the points made by the spokesman for the vatican were:
1.—The attitude of those Americans who view Smith's candidacy as really the candidacy of the Holy See was "most unfortunate."

2.—The Holy See does not know of any reason for desiring that a Catholic should be president of the United States.

3.—There will be no meddling on the part of the vatican in the campaign.

4.—The Holy See has often expressed satisfaction with the attitude assumed by the president of the United States.

5.—It is the policy of the Holy See to abstain from all political struggles within the various states.

"The apostolic delegate to the United States" the spokesman said "has been received everywhere most cordially even tho he does not enjoy diplomatic standing. The Holy See has often expressed satisfaction with the attitude assumed by the president of the United States, especially with respect to his adherence to several proposals of an international character."

"There will be no meddling whatsoever in the present campaign on the part of the vatican."

"The Holy See, while it would be pleased to see a Catholic called to the presidency of a great nation, as another proof of the esteem in which the church is held, would in no wise oppose the election of a Protestant."

"If the Holy See should oppose a Protestant in favor of a Catholic, it could not but create hostility to the Catholic church and result in obvious damage to the church's higher spiritual interests."

As One Writer Sees the Typical American

A heavy tread in men, with the weight of the body rolling from one leg to the other; a quick, provocative step in women, an oversureness beaming from face and body. A kind of impersonal apparel—clothes which are good and smart, but which are detached from the person who wears them. I see a hard-faced old matron with a big Paris hat, put on correctly and dutifully, and an antique cashmere shawl turned into a coat, worn with firmness and decorum, horn-rimmed eye-glasses, self-conscious shoes, and more than all that—the eyes.

American eyes are astoundingly outward-looking. They peer out into the world, seeming to run in advance of the brain behind them. They are often very beautiful in their eagerness and vivacity, but for a European they are almost terrifying; we fathom a touch of insanity in them. Their vigilance is so unrelaxing one feels as if they would never find rest in inward contemplation and never escape the pressure of things by inner seclusion. —O. N. Pilsgh in the Forum.

MUST BUILD A DISPOSAL PLANT

Sooner or Later, Plans and Specifications to be Prepared at Once.

Council met in regular session Wednesday evening, May 4, with President John C. Goeller, presiding.

Mr. Leist, as chairman, reported that the committee had investigated the application made by the Norfolk & Western Railway company to construct additional track on Huston street between Clinton and Washington streets and that the committee was willing to report favorable upon the petition of said railway company and on motion of Mr. Wolf this report was accepted.

Solicitor Weldon made a report of his visit to the state board of health in regard to the city water supply. He stated that the board is doing everything possible to make the water pure and stated that he had received word from the state board that the last analysis showed that the water was now pure enough to drink without boiling.

A petition signed by O. L. Ferguson and others asking the city to construct a sanitary sewer from the intersection of Half avenue and Clinton street, thence south on Clinton street to Ohio street; thence east on Ohio street to Renick avenue, was presented and read and was referred to the service committee and city engineer on motion of Mr. Baker the motion carried.

The matter of the city of Columbus polluting the water of the Scioto river by dumping their raw sewage into the same; and also the fact Columbus is preventing the natural flow of this water by the construction of dams, was brought to council by R. L. Brehmer and T. F. Jeffries representing the chamber of commerce. These gentlemen asked council to join with the county, the several townships along the river and the chamber of commerce to bring an action in the courts enjoining the city of Columbus from dumping its raw sewage into the Scioto river. This question was also discussed by Solicitor Weldon and Dr. Howard Jones. Th matter be referred to the committee on department of health.

This matter brought up the fact that the city of Circleville will be required in the future to build a sewer age disposal plant. A resolution requesting the city engineer to prepare plans, specifications, profiles and estimates of a sewerage disposal plant was introduced and read on motion of Mr. Baker was adopted.

An ordinance transferring from the general government fund to the public service fund, the sum of $240 and then appropriating said sum for the payment of the current used in the traffic lights was introduced read and passed under suspension of the rules.

Mayor Fitzpatrick reported fines, licenses and fees collected during the month of April in the sum of $369.80 and on motion of Landenberger this report was received and placed on file.

Mayor Fitzpatrick reported to council that a request had been made of him by some of the old soldiers, asking the city to construct a new fence around the old cemetery on High street and this was referred to the public service committee and director of public service.

On motion of Mr. Shaner the city solicitor was requested to prepare the necessary resolution in order to properly number the dwelling houses in the Ruff addition so they may receive free mail delivery.

AMUSEMENTS

The immeasurably, old and ever poignant story of the battle of man with the desert, the never ceasing struggle to nourish potentially rich lands with indispensable water, is the theme of "The Mysterious Rider" a Paramount picture from the Zane Grey story now playing at the Met theater.

The handsome Jack Holt, who rides as tho he were a part of the horse, and who handles a western six-shooter with the ease of long practice, more than satisfies. He plays the title role of Bent Wade, with the sympathy and nerve that influenced Zane Grey personally to select him to play leading roles in his stories. Betty Jewel, a newcomer in Paramount pictures, scores an immediate success.

Briefly, the story concerns a group of homesteaders, who find themselves in danger of losing their meagre desert lands because of the existence of an ancient Spanish grant that supersedes their own claims. This grant is held by Cliff Harkness, who finally agrees to relinquish it for a consideration of $25,000. The ranchers entrust the money to Wade who pays Harkness and receives a receipt.

But Harkness double crosses. He resells to Mark Kink, who represents a rich power company, for $150,000. Holt's receipt proves to be a blank piece of paper, and the ranchers believing him crooked turn on him to lynch him. He is forced into outlawry captured and confined in jail, from which he escapes to ride about the country masked, warning the settlers not to give up their lands.

From then on, his days are packed with excitement. He outwits Harkness, securing the ranchers the land grant, returns King his money, and finds himself once more a highly respected member of his community but only after a thrilling series of episodes that call forth all the acrobatic clunts in his repertoire.

A pleasing love story is interwoven Betty Jewel plays Dorothy King, daughter of the capitalist. She rides a horse as well as Holt and is no strain whatever to the eyes.

The comedy element is not omitted. This phase of the picture is in the capable hands of Tom Kennedy, known for his work in "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now" and "Man of the Forest."

PETER AND THE RISEN LORD

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-10; 21:15-17
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ which according to His abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Forgives Peter.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Forgives and Restores Peter.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Risen Lord Appeals to Peter.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Fellowship With the Risen Lord.

I. Peter and John at the Empty Tomb (John 20:1-10).

John does not enter into a description of the resurrection of Christ or attempt a proof other than that the tomb was empty and that Jesus had repeatedly manifested Himself to the disciples after the tomb had been found empty.
1. How they came to know (vv. 1, 2).
The information was brought by Mary Magdalene out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons (Mark 16:3, Luke 8:2). Prompted by love for Him she went early to the tomb, "while it was yet dark," "she was last at the cross and first at the grave, she stayed longest there and was soonest here." Her love for Jesus was genuine, though her knowledge of His resurrection was defective. She could not rest till she had done her utmost for Him because she realized that great good had come to her from His hands. The reason we work so little for the Lord is that we have such a dim sense of His saving grace.
2. Their investigation (vv. 3-10).
The news of the empty tomb, which Mary brought with breathless haste, so moved John and Peter that they both ran to investigate. Upon arrival at the tomb John gazed upon it, but Peter entered it. John, with holy reverence, hesitates. Peter, with impulsiveness, enters the tomb at once. Their respective actions are not to be explained on the basis of degrees of love for the Lord, but to temperament. The investigation convinced them. The removal of the stone from the sepulcher, the arrangement of the grave-clothes all convinced them that it had not been done by an enemy.

II. The Charge of the Risen Lord to Peter (John 21:15-17).

Jesus put to Peter the thrice repeated question, "Lovest thou me?" Then He gave him a commission. This shows that supreme love to Christ is the one essential qualification for serving Him. Love is the spring from which all Christian activity flows. He asked, also, to show that there are three classes in the church which demand care and attention. These three classes need special care and food.
1. Feed my lambs. (v. 15).
This first charge relates to those who are beginning the Christian life—the babes in Christ. The word "feed" means more than instruction. It means in addition to instruction that proper surroundings, influences and examples should be provided. As a Christian minister, Peter was to be an example, provide the proper surroundings and do the proper teaching for the young Christians, those just beginning the Christian life.
2. Tend my sheep (v. 16).
This charge shows a different class. It means to shepherd the sheep. It has application to the mature class of Christians. The duty enjoined therefore is to care for those who have passed out of their childhood into maturity. He must feed the sheep, give them proper instruction, guide them, lead them and discipline them. For this ministry the essential qualification is love.
3. Feed my sheep (v. 17).
The implication here is that Peter was charged with the responsibility of caring for aged Christians. The word "feed" is much the same as in the first case. It means that for the aged Christians the instruction ought to be such as will be suited to their needs. This needs special emphasis today because much attention is given to the young people, but in many instances the old people are neglected.
III. Follow Me (vv. 18-23).
In verse 18 is given a clear prophecy concerning Peter's death. It was to be by crucifixion. Peter once shrank from the cross, but now the Lord holds it up before him. It is not the Lord's death on the cross, but Peter's own. He teaches here that the Christian's death is for the glory of God. Whatever may be before us, even the cruel cross, the Lord's command is to follow Him.

Our Hope

Our hope lies not in the absence of danger, but in the presence of Christ, who is able to control the storm. No church with Christ in it can be wrecked or lost. More of the living Christ, more of His love, of His teaching.—Western Recorder.

BIG INSULATING BOARD FACTORY

For Southwest--New Corporation
Organized at St. Joseph,
Starts July 1.

Early in July the Stewart Inso Board Company will open a modern, splendidly equipped mill at St. Joseph, Missouri. The building, of the most modern concrete and steel type, is an example of the highest engineering standards as applied to industrial construction. The entire facilities of the plant will be given to the manufacture of one product, insulating building boards, to be known under the trade name "Inso Board." With initial output of over 100,000 square feet of Inso Board per day, this industry is probably the largest of its kind in the Southwest.

Certainly it will give to the southwestern states a new industrial impetus, for it is one of those essential enterprises whose conception and development was undertaken in response to an already existing demand for an industry of this particular type in this particular section of the country. Here is raw material in plentiful supply, much of it representing an economic waste to the Southwest of several million dollars yearly.

Straw, golden stacks of it, such as have been burned each year by the Southwestern farmer ever since the days when the great Kansas plains began to grow wheat in such Croesus-like abundance, will be the principal raw material used in the making of Inso Board.

It is readily understood, then, that the Stewart Inso Board industry, built as it is in conformity to the leading agricultural pursuit of its natural territory, will open up a new and extensive market for a by-product of the vast wheat-growing industry of the Southwest—a by-product which heretofore has largely gone into the economic discard.

The process of using straw as the base for the manufacture of insulating board is a new one.

Insulating boards in recent years have been manufactured from various fibres but the American Association of Refrigerating Engineers in their annual report, recently published, classed straw as being higher in insulating value than other fibres.

ORDER POWER

SERVICE RESUMED

A breach between two northeastern Ohio electric power companies, which resulted in power being discontinued to several communities for a short time, was halted temporarily Tuesday by action of the Trumbull County Common Pleas Court enjoining the Ohio Public Service Co. of Warren from shutting off power furnished the Suburban Power Co., Cleveland.

At the same time, the Ohio Public Utilities Commission ordered the Warren firm to resume service.

The Suburban Power Co. serves communities in Portage, Trumbull, Mahoning and Stark counties.

A conference was in progress at Cleveland Tuesday afternoon to iron out the differences between the two companies.

Bank Bandits' Social

"Approach" Is Flawless

Superior, Neb.—Making an offer to entertain their thirteen prisoners and avoiding any display of roughness, the two well-dressed bandits who held up and ransacked the Farmers' State bank here of $25,000 during lunch hour, established a model of politeness.

"Here, take a seat. You'll be more comfortable," one of the bandits told J. H. Parsons, the bank's president, who had been lined up with the other captives. Parsons sat down, as did several other prisoners who could find chairs, while all awaited the arrival of the cashier to unlock the safe.

"Come right in, sir, and make yourself at home," said one of the men as a shoemaker's apprentice came into the bank for change. "Just step over there with the other gentlemen."

When Floyd Boersman, assistant cashier, finally entered the bank, the bandits forced him to open the safe. One scooped up everything in the vault, while the other marshaled his prisoners into the repository. He failed to lock the vault door, however, and an alarm was soon sounded, but no trace was found of the men.

Buy A Car With This Extra Money

FINANCIAL authorities announce that we now have a 70-cent dollar. In 1920 it was a 40-cent dollar worth—in purchasing power, not much more than half the dollar of today. These computations are based on one dollar's worth of general commodities at pre-war prices. The automobile dollar has increased in value at an even faster pace. It will actually buy more today than the pre-war automobile dollar.

You are making more money now, even tho your income is no greater. Add to your life the advantages of up-to-date automotive transportation—exemplified at its best by the 1927 Ford line. Come in and talk it over.

SPECIAL SALE AND DEMONSTRATION

By a Practical Paint Man From the Factory

10% Discount On Thrift Day

Thrift Paint is the best Paint Proposition we ever sold or know about, for these reasons:

Thrift Paint is made of Pure White Lead, Zinc, Colors, Dryer and Linseed Oil in required proportions to produce the longest wear, beautiful colors and finish. Thrift Paint comes in a master painter's unreduced form and is ground so fine and mixed so well that it does not settle, and covers more surface. Thrift Paint is made ready for use by mixing one gallon of "Thrift" with one gallon of pure linseed oil, producing two gallons of paint, for first coat or priming more oil is added.

The Johnson Paint Co. make only high grade paints, but conceived this idea of saving Half the Cost of cans, boxing, labels, labor and freight which makes a saving of 75c to $1.00 per gallon as compared with other High Grade Paints.

This outstanding bargain for Thrift Paint is offered one day only in the year, when you can buy Thrift at 10 per cent less by booking your orders and paying a small amount down, and balance when you get the paint anytime during May, June or July.

She Won in Spite of Lulu

By JANE OSBORN

AFTER Eleanor Pickett had worked as stenographer in the insurance office of Mansard & Son she had to admit that she was in love with young George Mansard, and she had, moreover, to admit that she was jealous of Lulu Otis, the plump, strawberry-blond grass widow who sat at the telephone switchboard in the outer office of the Granger establishment, and spoke of herself as Mr. Mansard's private secretary. The fact that Eleanor took Mr. Mansard's dictation and had got so that she could attend to much of his correspondence alone made no difference to Lulu. Lulu insisted on taking charge of him. There was something unmistakably magnetic about Lulu and Eleanor tried to stifle her jealous feelings when Mr. Mansard loitered in the outer office exchanging slangy badinage with the buxom Lulu.

"You're terribly old-fashioned," Lulu had told her, on several occasions, and one day she added: "If you want to get in right with the boss you've got to show more pep. Of course while I'm here all he expects of you is to take his dictation, but if I were to leave, why he'd want a private secretary. I'd like to see you get the job, but you've got to remember that a man like Mr. Mansard needs a private secretary with an awful lot of pep—someone to kind of buck him up."

"But you're not thinking of leaving?" asked Eleanor timidly.

"Well, you know, girlie—a girl like me doesn't intend to work forever. I've only just got my freedom." By freedom Eleanor knew that Lulu referred to her divorce papers which she had received only a few weeks before. "And I'm not going to be in too big a hurry this time."

Eleanor felt her cheeks burn with suspicious jealousy. She had seen Bob Mansard talking for a full half hour with Lulu that very morning.

"You know I always wear earrings to the office. Personally I think it's worth while to doll up a bit. The boss likes it and a lot of nice fellows come in here all the time. Of course you've got a nice complexion but just a bit of make-up does help a girl's appearance an awful lot—"

The next morning Eleanor purposely reached the office ten minutes ahead of her usual time of arrival so that she could be seated at her desk before Mr. Mansard or Lulu arrived. She didn't want to be too conspicuous in her new earrings.

But apparently the bit of makeup or the earrings did make a difference because when Bob Mansard came into the room he whistled.

"Why the war paint?" he asked in a tone of unusual familiarity. "And, great scot, dingle-dangles on your ears besides."

"Don't you like them?" asked Eleanor putting her hands up to the earrings.

"Oh, they're all right—only I think I like you better 'au naturel.'"

Eleanor swiftly pulled off the earrings and tucked them into the drawer of her desk.

"I didn't think you cared as much as that what I thought," said Bob Mansard, and Eleanor merely looked up at him with a smile.

Weeks and months went on and the situation so far as Eleanor and Bob Mansard were concerned went on without change. It seemed, however, to Eleanor as if she noted signs of increasing intimacy between him and Lulu. Doubtless now that she had really gained her "freedom" he was courting her in good earnest. Then came one Saturday morning when Eleanor could not fail to see an unwonted brilliance in Lulu's eyes.

"Heard the excitement?" Lulu asked Eleanor and then went on to explain. "I'm leaving for good in a few hours, girlie. I just came around to sort of say good-by. I'm going to get married Monday."

"I—hope you'll be very happy—Oh, I'm sure you will," stammered Eleanor, and then dreading the answer to the question—"May I know the name of the lucky man?"

Lulu's "You ask Mr. Mansard after I've gone," left no doubt whatever in Eleanor's mind.

Of course Eleanor didn't ask Mr. Mansard anything about it but just went to her desk and worked like a Trojan all the morning. At half-past eleven Bob Mansard drew up a chair beside her desk and dropped limply into it.

"She's gone at last," he sighed. "Lord knows how I've been looking forward to this moment."

"You mean—Mrs. Otis—Lulu?" asked Eleanor timidly.

"Lulu, indeed," said Robert. "And now Eleanor I'm going to make a long story short. I've loved you from the first day you came—but I've never dared tell you until now."

"But why did you have to wait?" she asked bewildered.

"Because I couldn't bear to be alone here with her—with Lulu. I was afraid she would never leave. You've no idea how she bossed me and bothered me before you came, and I didn't dare discharge her."

"But I thought she thought you were one of the strings to her bow—"

"Maybe she did," sighed Bob Mansard, taking Eleanor's little hand in his. "But I introduced her to a susceptible friend of mine with a load of money. But don't let's talk about them—Eleanor—please tell me you love me a little."

SOME FISH STORY COMES FROM FAR AWAY ALASKA

Charles Miller, Born In This City, After Roaming Over a Large Part of the World, Sighs For Old Roundtown—One of the First Things He Saw In Seattle Was a Copy of the Union-Herald.

The following letter to the Union-Herald from Charles Miller, of Seattle, Washington, and a grandson of J. A. Miller, of Darbyville, is self-explanatory:

"In September, 1901, I came to Circleville via the usual route we humans take to enter this world. If I remember correctly the time was about mid-afternoon, the day McKinley was shot, the place was Judge Abernethy's old home on North Court street, and the doctor was Dr. Howard Jones, from just across the street. Five months later I left Circleville and have never had the pleasure of again being there."

"I have just recently returned to Seattle from one of my trips and about the first thing I saw after getting settled again was a copy of the Union-Herald. Looking thru it I came across many names and places that seemed so very familiar. That was because I have heard my folks talk about them many times and they seemed something of mine, too."

"Circleville, somehow, seems to be as much mine as any of you who have lived there quite some time. I can't exactly explain the feeling but you must admit I am one of you. Then again there is my grandfather, J. A. Miller, of Darbyville, who, it seems to me is near enough to hold my option on Circleville."

"I spent my high schools days in Springfield and attended Wittenberg college there for a year. After that time we came to Seattle where I attended the University of Washington. Later I finished at the University of Arkansas. That is quite a diversified education, I think, if you take the geography into consideration."

"Speaking of geography perhaps you would like to know just how far a young man from Circleville has traveled. I have traveled to Seattle from Ohio and back again, three times; from Seattle to Arkansas, Florida, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California and all the places in between, including Mexico and many side trips; to Alaska, Kuprenoff Island, Admiralty Island, Canada, and into the Yukon territory. I'll tell you a fish story of Alaska later; thru Japan, Chosen, China and the Philippines; not mentioning all the side trips I have taken and the trips taken because of athletics."

"If you are interested in any of these places or anything connected with them I will be glad to write and tell you all I can of them. Oh, yes, that fish story."

"First I'll have to lead up to it as it is rather hard to believe at that. The vicinity around Seattle, Puget Sound, expects to pack 1,000,000 cases of salmon this season, which lasts about six or seven weeks. In each case is thirty-six cans of salmon the tall cans. Alaska, of course, will pack many times that amount. The salmon are caught in fish traps and taken to the canneries in large scows holding about 22,000 fish, and towed by tug boats. Last summer, at Point Hobart, off Port Houghton, Alaska, my brother, Francis and myself, witnessed the unexpected and unusual case of seeing a trap catch 33,000 sock-eye and silver salmon in twenty-four hours fishing. None of the fish measured under twenty inches, and most of them were much larger than that measurement. Just imagine thirty-three thousand plunging, leaping flashes of silver salmon in one little pot net thirty by thirty feet and twenty-five feet deep. There's your fish story, a true one and a good one."

"My brother and myself are returning to Alaska again this summer on another trip and we are just waiting until he graduates from high school this June to do so. That many beautiful game fish in one day makes a fascinating argument for any fisherman to return and do some more fishing himself, but with a trolling line and not with a tray. They're fighters, those silvers, sock-eyes and kings, and sometimes when you get a hundred pound king on your line, it's just a matter of luck you don't get jerked into those cold waters."

"I'll have to stop this, as it will run on for pages if I don't. But, I'd like to hear from someone in Circleville who will tell me all about the town. I'm interested and really expect to make a trip back there either next fall or next spring."

"I've found one thing true, however, a journalist can go where he pleases, when he pleases and how he pleases, anywhere he cares to go, the newspaper game will take him."

"Please ask someone to acquaint me with Circleville. I'm awfully interested."

BIG DEFICIT FACES OHIO JULY FIRST

Will be $20,000,000 in Two Years Unless New Revenue Sources are Found.

Ohio's treasury will be faced with a deficit of $12,800,000 at the close of the present two year period June 30, 1927, State Auditor Tracy said Wednesday, replying to a request of Governor Donahey for figures and estimates of the financial condition of the state.

Expenditures for the 18 month period beginning July 1, which have been authorized by appropriations of the general assembly will exceed revenue for that period by $7,150,000 creating a further deficit.

According to these figures, the legislature and the governor are faced with the task of devising new means of raising revenue and cutting expenses for the next two years to the extent of $20,000,000. Both means probably will be used.

This information was brought out in replies to three questions asked by the governor as to "the actual condition of the treasury May 1, 1927 June 30, 1927 and December 31, 1928." The information related only to the general revenue fund from which most state operating expenses are paid.

Money which was appropriated but not paid out on May 1, amounted to $23,281,000, the latter said. Much of this money is demanded by what are regarded as irreducible expenses. These demands will be increased between now and June 30 by $814,700 bringing the total to $24,096,000.

In addition to this, there existed on May 1, an overdraft of $2,138,536. Receipts between now and June 30, were estimated at approximately $2,348,000, which will equal the deficit and allow $110,000 balance to be applied against the $24,096,000, reducing the latter figure to $23,986,000.

Were it not for appropriations which will lapse June 30, the state's deficit of that date would be twice as large. Lapsing appropriations total $11,182,500 and bring down the deficit as given above to $12,803,000.

They include state office building $3,982,500; additions and betterments (new buildings, equipment, etc.) $2,500,000; state highway appropriation (new construction) $1,500,000; educational equalization, $2,500,000 (carried over until next year) and miscellaneous $700,000.

In arriving at the problem shortage during the coming budgetary period beginning July 1, which shortage he fixed at $7,154,000, the auditor disagrees with estimates of legislative leaders. In estimating amounts which would be derived from increases in utility and corporation taxes, the total increase was fixed at $5,500,000 by legislative leaders and at $2,750,000 by the state auditor.

Mars and Its Satellites

The naval observatory says that both satellites of Mars move around that planet in the same direction; but the inner satellite completes one revolution in less time than Mars makes one rotation and, therefore, seen from Mars it appears to move in the opposite direction to the outer satellite.

Middle Ages Coinage

Mark was the name of a coin pretty general throughout Europe during the Middle Ages. The unit of the present coinage of Germany is called the mark. The old English mark was worth 13s 4d, that is $3.25; but in the Middle Ages the purchasing power of money was fully three times that of today.

KUPPENHEIMER MODELS ALL RIGHT---ALL THE WAY THRU!

There's something nice about every suit of clothes—but there's everything nice about a Kuppenheimer.

You like the fit, the fashion and the way it feels.

The model lends itself with borrowing from the extreme—you look like a gentleman—and that's half the battle—then all you have to do is behave yourself.

FLORENCE cooks meals in double-quick time

A strong statement? Not at all. We know stoves. And we know that the Florence flame sends more heat into the cooking in a given time from a gallon of kerosene than any other high-power oil range. It's focused heat that cuts down kitchen hours—and fuel bills as well. Ever cook on a Florence? A pleasant experience is awaiting you. It will pay you to come in today.
